JACK RAMSAY

When Jack Ramsay was named coach of the Portland Trail Blazers in the summer of 1976, he set as an immediate goal a berth in the playoffs.

He also hoped for something in the neighborhood of 45 victories—which would be a Portland record.

How did it work out?

In his first season with Portland, 1976-77, Ramsay coached the Trial Blazers to the world's championship.

In his second season, 1977-78, the Blazers led the National Basketball Association in regular season victories and might have set all-time NBA records except for injuries that crippled the team in March and in the playoffs.

It's little wonder that the Blazers have signed Ramsay to a new contract.

In the past five seasons, Ramsay's teams—three at Buffalo and the last two at Portland—have won 244 and lost 166.

That's the best record in the NBA over that stretch.

Al Attles of Golden State is second at 240-170 and Dick Motta, with Chicago and now Washington, is third at 217-193.

With Portland, Ramsay's teams have won 107 and lost 57 for a winning percentage of .652.

In 10 NBA seasons—four with Philadelphia, four with Buffalo and two with Portland—Ramsay has won 439 and lost 381.

In 21 seasons as a head coach—11 in college and 10 in the pro ranks—Ramsay has won 673 and lost 453 for an overall winning mark of .598—almost 60 per cent.

In his new book, The Coach's Art, Ramsay explains some of his outlook on the game in his introduction.

"A great team playing within itself, playing with control and purpose, is beautiful to watch," he writes.

Ramsay continues:

"Good play seems almost effortless. Five separate wills blended into a single whole, playing with one purpose—to win, yes, but by playing its own game, a game in which it believes.

"Behind the seeming ease with which a great team plays lie hours of preparation."

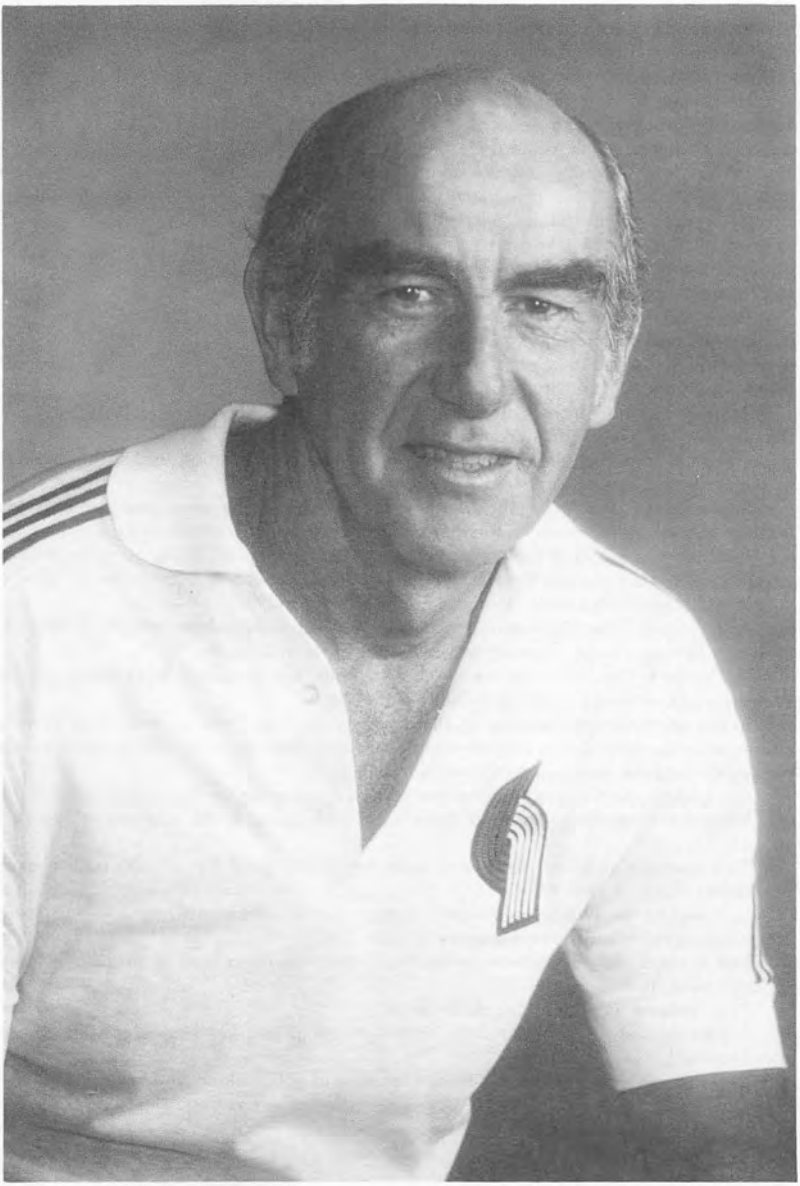
Of Portland's world's championship team, Ramsay said simply, "They played the game the way I had always hoped to see it played."

Ramsay never had a losing season in 11 years as coach of St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, where he won 76.5 per cent of his games with a record of 234 victories and 72 defeats.

A 1949 graduate of St. Joseph's, where he was team captain as a senior, Ramsay coached his alma mater from 1955-56 through 1965-66, leading the Hawks to 10 major post-season tournaments.

In his WORST two seasons, he posted 18-10 records.

Ramsay is married and he and his wife, Jean, have three daughters and two sons.



JACK RAMSAY — COACH

HARRY GLICKMAN — 1978-79

In the fall of 1970, a Sports Illustrated writer visited Portland for the first time to ask questions about the Trail Blazers, one of three new teams in the National Basketball Association.

He turned to Harry Glickman, executive vice president and general manager, at a luncheon and asked:

"What do you think you know about basketball?"

Glickman, as candid as ever, answered, "I don't think I know anything about basketball. I think I know how to sell tickets, to put people in seats."

Glickman, incidentally, explained his theories and detailed his experiences in a book published this past summer titled "Promoter Ain't A Dirty Word."

After graduation from University of Oregon in 1948, Glickman's promotional experience revolved chiefly around boxing, professional football and such sidelines as the Harlem Globetrotters.

In the 1950s and '60s, Glickman made Portland the professional football exhibition capital of the nation—outside, of course, National Football League cities.

Exhibition in Portland drew an average of better than 25,000 a game in an era when games in other cities frequently were in the 5,000 and 10,000 range.

The Globetrotters almost always sold out in Portland.

And Glickman was active in post-World War II boxing when virtually every all-time attendance and gate record was set in the state of Oregon.

Glickman's first full-time venture was with the Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey Leage, starting in the fall of 1960.

In the next decade, besides finishing first seven times and second twice in nine consecutive seasons, the Buckaroos smashed every attendance record in professional hockey outside the then tightly-knit National League.

Glickman turned to the National Basketball Association in the fall of 1970.

From the beginning, Portland drew well, averaging 6,135 a game in the first season.

That average climbed steadily to over the 10,000 mark by 1974-75 and to over the 12,000 mark by 1976-77.

Last season the Blazers averaged 12,666 a game—the exact capacity, including 300 standing room seats, for the entire season.

The Blaxers would start the 1978-79 campaign with a background of 59 consecutive sellouts.

That, indeed, is putting people in seats.

Glickman and his wife, Joanne, have two daughters, Lynn and Jennifer, and a son, Marshall.

During rare leisure hours, he enjoys tennis and golf, fishing and bridge.

STUART K. INMAN

Stuart K. Inman, the Portland Trail Blazers' vice president in charge of player personel, took more than his share of the raps during the lean years.

This draft choice was criticized. That draft choice was criticized. This trade was ripped. That trade was ripped.

To his everlasting credit, Inman never ducked. He never ducked public meetings or talk shows, sports writers or sportscasters. He was available, eyeball to eyeball or on the telephone.

Then came the last two seasons. In 1976-77, the world's championship. In 1977-78, the best regular-season record in the National Basketball Association.

Jack Ramsay and Jack McKinney coached the teams. But they were Inman's ball clubs. The world's championship team had eight draft choices, two free agents, one player acquired in a trade and only one outright purchase.

Last year's team had eight draft choices, one free agent and two players acquired in trades.

And the 1978 draft, overall, is rated the best in Portland history, the Blazers acquiring two of the first seven players drafted.

Inman is a Trail Blazer original. He was hired as a temporary scout to put together Portland's first draft in a couple of wild, sleepless months in the spring of 1970.

By the end of the 1971-72 season he had been named a vice president of the team — after a half-season of interim coaching following the dismissal of Rolland Todd.

Inman is the all-time scoring champion of San Jose State. (He doesn't mention that he still holds the school record for personal fouls, too.)

He later coached his alma mater. And he's an old hand at conducting international basketball clinics. He made his ninth teaching trip to the Orient in 1977.

Inman and his wife, Elinor, have four daughters — Nancy, Sandy, Janice and Carol — and a son, David.

After constructing a world's championship team, you might think Inman rested. No way. He spent the summer preparing for the future.

And in Inman's book, the future is now.

JACK McKINNEY

Not all reunions turn out to be pleasant.

You know, that old gang of mine turns out to be just that — old. Your long-lost brother turns out to be a crank. You look at the girl you left behind you and realize why you left her.

But Jack McKinney and Jack Ramsay?

"It didn't turn out too badly, did it," says McKinney wryly.

No, not too badly—a world's championship followed by the best regular-season record in the National Basketball Association.

The personable McKinney joined the Blazers as assistant coach in the fall of 1976 after two campaigns with the Milwaukee Bucks.

But his relationship with Ramsay dates back to days at St. Joseph's where McKinney, from 1953 to 1957, played basketball for the current skipper of the Trail Blazers.

Later McKinney coached the Pennsylvania school for eight seasons before joining the professional ranks.

It was Stu Inman, Portland's vice president and director of player personnel, who said of McKinney at the time he was named to the Blazer post:

"McKinney has been a successful head coach. He has paid his dues. He has proved an excellent teacher. And he will have great value early in reconstructing the team."

It all came true.

McKinney, indeed, was a successful coach. His eight St. Joseph's teams won 144 and lost 77. In one season at Philadelphia Textile he was 21-6. His overall college coaching record was 165 victories and 83 defeats.

McKinney's teams were in five NCAA and one NIT tournaments, captured five conference championships and two holiday title tournaments. In 1973-74 he was named Eastern College Coach of the Year.

McKinney, a native of Chester, Pa., earned a Master's Degree in education at St. Joseph's. He is married and he and his wife, Claire, have four children, two daughters and two sons.

TRAINER RON CULP

Trainer Ron Culp of the Portland Trail Blazers has a rare souvenir — a pair of basketball game tickets enclosed in plastic.

One is for the Trail Blazers' first National Basketball Association game on October 16, 1970 against the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The other is for a game on June 5, 1977, against the Philadelphia 76ers.

That one meant the world's championship for the Blazers.

Culp attended both games.

But the first time he was trainer for the Cavaliers of Cleveland.

"I'll tell you one thing," says Culp' "I enjoy looking at that second ticket much more than the first."

"And the last game," he laughs, "was a lot more enjoyable than the first one."

Culp, who is perpetual motion twelve months a year, is serving as the Blazers' trainer for the fifth straight season, after four campaigns with Cleveland.

And he was trainer for two seasons and part of a third for the Portland Timbers of the North American Soccer League.

Culp holds a master's degreee from Bowling Green State Universiey, and has done further graduate work at Case Western Reserve University.

His wife, Marilyn, has a master's degree (plus further graduate study) and works for the Multnomah County district attorney's office in Portland.

As s traveling secretary, Culp is a master. Or at one of Portland's sports writer put it:

"I hate to fly without the team any more. By the time you get to the airport with the Blazers, Culp has everything done for you."

RICKLES

GEORGE RICKLES

Business manager of Portland's Trail Blazers is genial George Rickles, who for 13 years also supervised ticket operations of the Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League. Rickles is a top bridge player and deep sea fisherman and is noted as a sparkling master of ceremonies. He is a University of Washington graduate.

JOHN WHITE

Publicity Director of the Portland Trail Blazers is John White. A 15-year newspaper reporter and former executive sports editor of Portland's Oregon Journal, White served 16 years as correspondent in Oregon for Sports Illustrated, plus four years as correspondent for Time and Fortune magazines.

BILL SCHONELY

Voice of the Trail Blazers for the 9th straight year is bouncy Bill Schonely, an ex-marine who made the battle cry of "Rip City" — for a perfect basketball shot — famous in Portland. Schonely also has television and radio sport shows. Schonely came to Portland after seven years as sports director of KVI radio in Seattle. He also has announced action for the Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League and the ill-fated Seattle Pilots of the American Baseball League.

Hodges

Scales

Johnson

BERLYN HODGES

A jack of all trades and master of many is Berlyn Hodges, who is administrative assistant to Harry Glickman with the Trail Blazers. He formerly was vice president of the Portland Buckaroos hockey team. Before moving into the front office, Hodges was the Buckaroos' trainer for 11 seasons and before that he was a professional baseball pitcher. In his leisure hours, Hodges still is a crack golfer. He and his wife, Myrna, have two daughters, Leslie and Daina.

WALLY SCALES

Director of Promotions with the Blazers is Wally Scales, who is in his seventh season with the team. Scales has earned a reputation for providing sharp halftime entertainment and arranging promotions that have captured the fancy of fans. He is in constant demand as a speaker at service clubs and other organizations. Scales was an all-city guard in his native St. Louis and attended Lincoln Universty and Citrus College, the latter after an air force hitch. He is married and he and his wife, Wyvonia, have one son, Gregory.

ART JOHNSON

Director of theatre operations for the Portland Trail Blazers is Art Johnson, an executive the last 14 years with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. Johnson was publicity director the first two years and assistant to the president the last 12. A University of San Francisco graduate, Johnson was sports information director at San Jose State for five years before joining the 49ers. He and his wife, Irene, have four daughters.

T. R. DUNN

When T. R. Dunn joined the Portland Trail Blazers last season as a rookie guard, his Alabama coach, C. M. Newton, said:

"It's part of his makeup that we take him for granted and that's amazing because it's hard to take excellence for granted in any field. But he does things with such grace and such apparent ease, that has been the case."

And Kentucky Coach Joe Hall said, "Dunn is a true team player, the type player every team should have."

That's what Dunn was for the Trail Blazers, a true team player who stayed involved despite spending most of his time on the bench as an observer.

Overall, Dunn, who proved strong defensively, played in 63 games, averaging 12 minutes a contest. He shot .417 from the field, .661 from the foul line and averaged 3.8 points a game.

But as his playing time increased, Dunn showed improvement.

In his first 29 games, averaging 8.4 minutes a contest, Dunn shot just .354 from the field and averaged 2.5 points a game.

In his last 34 games, he averaged 15.4 minutes a game. His shooting improved to .447 and his scoring average to 4.8.

In one stretch from January 26 through February 3 of the last season, Dunn played, in order, 27, 22, 20 and 26 minutes.

From the field, in order, he was 5-8, 6-8, 3-8, and 1-2.

He shot .577 on 15 of 26. He had 17 rebounds. He had an amazing 13 steals. And he scored 31 points for an average of just under 8 a game.

Dunn's shooting marks against some individual opponents were most impressive.

He was .667 against Los Angeles, .636 against Houston, .625 against Phoenix and .600 against San Antonio. And he was an even .500 against New Jersey, Kansas City, New York and Denver.

BOB GROSS

Until he suffered an ankle fracture on March 23 in Milwaukee, Bobby Gross was proving an ironman.

The 6-6 forward from Long Beach State, Portland's second-round draft choice in 1975, was playing in his 196th consecutive game—72 straight (and he started in 71) to open last season, 19 straight in the '77 playoffs, all 82 in the 1976-77 regular season and the last 23 in a row in 1975-76.

Although he missed the rest of the campaign, the last season still was Gross' best of his three years in the National Basketball Association.

His scoring average was 12.7, up from 11.4 a year earlier and 6.8 as a rookie.

His rebound totals increased each season from 307 to 394 to 400. So did his assist totals, from 163 to 242 to 254.

As a rookie, Gross shot only .683 from the foul line. The last two seasons he was .851 (second-best record in Portland history) and an even .800.

But shooting accuracy from the field really tells the story of the 25-year-old forward starting his fourth campaign with Portland.

He shot .523 as a rookie, .529 the next season and .529 again the last time around. And those .529s are the best in Portland history.

Going into the last campaign, only five players still active in the NBA had strung together three consecutive seasons of .500-or-better shooting . . . Kareem Abdul-Jabbar . . . Bob Lanier . . . Rudy Tomjanovich . . . Clifford Ray . . . and Dick Snyder.

Gross' .529 last season ranked him eighth in the NBA.

Against some individual clubs, Gross proved awesome.

He was .600 or better against six rivals . . . 656 against Milwaukee . . . 625 against Cleveland . . . 622 against Indiana . . . 611 against Golden State . . . 609 against New Jersey . . . 600 against Houston . . .

And Gross was .563 against Seattle, .556 against Detroit, .548 against San Antonio, .545 against Denver, .535 against Chicago, .533 vs. LA . . .

Miscellany . . . Gross was sorely missed in the '78 playoffs . . . when the Blazers won the world's title he averaged 14.1 points a game and shot .591 from the field . . . Gross' worst shooting mark last year was .387 against Boston . . . Gross set single-game career highs last season with 13 field goals, 20 field goals attempted, 12 free throws, 12 free throws attempted and 27 points . . . he scored 10 or more points in 56 games and earned 6 or more assists in 13 games . . . Gross scored best last season against Cleveland (19.3 points a game), Denver (18.0) and Golden State (17.3) . . .

LIONEL HOLLINS

Lionel Hollins started his third National Basketball Association season—1977-78—with an explosion.

In Portland's home opener against the San Antonio Spurs, Hollins hit on 15 of 22 shots from the field and 8 of 8 from the foul line.

The 36 points were the most scored by a Blazer until the 72nd game of the campaign when the 6-3 guard from Arizona State broke the mark himself with 38.

It was that kind of season for Portland's 1975 first-round draft choice.

He led the Blazers in minutes played (2741). He led the team in field goals (531) and field goal attempts (1202). He was first in free throws (223) and free throw attempts (300).

For the second straight season he led the Blazers in assists with a career high of 380. He was first in personal fouls (268) and in points with 1285 for a 15.9 average.

Hollins had single-game career highs of 10 rebounds, 11 assists and 8 steals.

He played in his first NBA All Star game, and his season was crowned by his selection to the first team of the NBA All-Defensive team.

Improvement told the story of Hollins' first three professional seasons.

His field goal totals climbed from 311 to 452 to 531. His shooting improved from .421 to .432 to .442. His free throw totals increased from 178 to 215 to 223. He was .721 at the foul line as a rookie, then was .749 and .743.

It was the same with rebounds—175 to 210 to 277. It was the same with assists—306 to 313 to 380. And it was the same with points—800 to 1119 to 1285 last season.

For Lionel Hollins, just 24 when the season started, the future seems unlimited.

Miscellany . . . Hollins has averaged 13.9 points a game in regular season action but 17.1 points a contest in the playoffs . . . he averaged 20 or more points a game against four opponents last season, New Orleans (20.8), New York (20.8), Detroit (20.5) and San Antonio (20.3) . . . Hollins failed to average in double figures against only one opponent, Cleveland . . . after only three seasons, Hollins already ranks fifth on Portland's all-time list for assists, personal fouls and field goals attempted and sixth in field goals, minutes, free throws attempted and points . . . Hollins' 43 points against Boston on Feb. 22, 1977, ties for the fourth-highest single-game point total in Portland history . . . Hollins scored 20 or more points in 22 games last season and was in double figures in 68 games, best record on the club . . . he had 30 games with six or more assists, best record on the club . . . he started 81 games, missing one with an injury . . . and he played 40 or more minutes in 13 games, more than twice the number of runnersup Tom Owens and Maurice Lucas . . .

MAURICE LUCAS

The 1977-78 season was one of nagging injuries for Maurice Lucas, 6-9 power forward of the Portland Trail Blazers.

The Marquette product wasn't out for any one long stretch. But he missed five games in a row in November, one in January, two in February and six in March.

As a result, his playing time dropped from 2863 minutes to 2119 minutes. His statistics suffered somewhat.

Yet, despite this, Lucas played in his second straight All Star game in two NBA seasons, was selected to the second All-NBA team at the end of the campaign and was picked on the first team in the NBA's All-Defensive squad.

Lucas played two American Basketball Association seasons before joining the Trail Blazers for the 1976-77 season and helping them to the world's championship.

In his first Portland season, Lucas led the team in minutes played, field goals, field goals attempted, free throws, free throws attempted, personal fouls and scoring with a 20.2 average.

Last season, despite injuries, Lucas was second on the Blazers in field goals attempted, third in field goals, second in free throws, third in free throws attempted, first in offensive rebounds, second in total rebounds and second in total points and scoring average (16.4).

Lucas led the Blazers in scoring in the playoffs with a 17.2 average, as he had a season earlier with 20.2 points a game. And in the final three games of the series against Seattle, Lucas scored 66 points for 22 a contest.

In just two seasons, Lucas already has climbed into Portland's list of all-time leaders—fifth in rebounds, seventh in field goals, seventh in points with 2712, eighth in free throws and 10th in minutes played.

Miscellany . . . Lucas averaged 20 or more points a game last season against four opponents . . . Cleveland (21.7), Chicago (21.0), Denver (20.5) and New Orleans (20.0) . . . he scored in double figures against every opponent except Phoenix (9.8) . . . he shot best against New Jersey with .600 and was .549 against New Orleans, .532 against Milwaukee, .525 against Philadelphia, .510 against Cleveland and .500 against both Los Angeles and Atlanta . . . his top rebounding averages were 12.5 against Boston, 11.5 against Denver and 11.3 against Indiana . . . Lucas last season scored 20 or more points in 25 games and was in double figures in 55 games . . . he had 10 or more rebounds in 29 games . . . he started 63 games . . .

LLOYD NEAL

If there's ever been a tough luck player with Portland's Trail Blazers, it has been veteran center-forward Lloyd Neal.

Neal, a 6-7 Tennessee State product who was drafted in the third round in 1972, missed only two games in his first three seasons with the Blazers, playing in 244 of a possible 246.

Then injuries struck, mostly to the knees, and he played 68 games in '75-'76 and 58 games with only 955 minutes in '76-'77.

Last season he played in all of Portland's first 61 games. But on March 2 in New York City, the knee jinx struck again. He was out for the rest of the regular season and saw just 47 minutes of playoff action.

Despite injuries and limiting playing time, it was a banner season for the 27-year-old Neal who in the three games just prior to his injury poured in 26 points, 35 points and 27 points.

Neal averaged 11 points a game, up from 6.8 a year earlier. He shot .504 from the field, best mark of his career. And he was .718 from the foul line, best record of his six NBA seasons.

Neal set single-game career highs of 15 field goals, 25 field goals attempted and 35 points.

The veteran still holds Portland's single-season rebound record of 967 set in 1972-73 when he was runnerup to Bob McAdoo for NBA Rookie of the Year honors. His single-game rebound high is 23, set against Los Angeles on Oct. 28, 1973.

Neal ranks high on most of Portland's all-time lists. He is second in personal fouls and is second in rebounds with 3361, just 725 behind leader Sidney Wicks.

He is third in games played with 431, just behind second-place Geoff Petrie and he also is third in points, field goals made and attempted and free throws made and attempted.

Miscellany . . . Neal scored best last season against Los Angeles (18.5 points a game) and Detroit (17.3) . . . he has some sizzling shooting marks against individual opponents . . . he was .737 on 14 of 19 against Golden State . . . he shot .680 against Los Angeles and .600 against Atlanta . . . he was .575 against Kansas City, .571 against Seattle, .542 against Denver, .541 against Detroit and .529 against New Orleans . . . to demonstrate what limited playing time does to total figures, Neal played 38 minutes all season against Atlanta and had 24 points and 11 rebounds . . . he played 32 minutes against Milwaukee with 23 points and 17 rebounds . . . he played 30 minutes against Houston with 18 points and 9 rebounds . . .

TOM OWENS

In 1977-78, there were two distinctly different seasons for Tom Owens, 6-10 center of the Portland Trail Blazers.

In 60 games through February 28, Owens was backup center to Bill Walton and averaged 15 minutes of playing time a contest.

In Portland's last 22 games, the South Carolina product started at center and averaged 37 minutes of action a game.

The difference in Owens' record?

In the first 60 games, he averaged 4.9 rebounds a contest. In the last 22 games, that average was a healthy 11.4.

Owens averaged 1.2 assists a game in his first 60 games, 4.1 a contest in his last 22.

And the former ABA traveler averaged 7.3 points a game in his first 60 contests, boosted that average to 18 a contest in his last 22.

In his last 22 games, Owens scored 20 or more points 11 times . . .

Check some of the individual performances . . . 25 points and 11 rebounds against New York . . . 20 points and 18 rebounds against Milwaukee . . . 22 points and 14 rebounds against New Orleans . . . 27 points and 14 rebounds against Atlanta . . . 26 points and 16 rebounds against Seattle . . . 26 points and 14 rebounds against Philadelphia . . . 21 points and 9 rebounds against Boston . . . 21 points and 13 rebounds against Houston . . . 23 points and 8 rebounds against Los Angeles.

That's heady stuff.

It's true that Portland did not win as often with Owens, who came to the Blazers in the trade that sent Robin Jones to Houston.

But don't oversimplify that, either. A couple of players named Bobby Gross and Lloyd Neal were out of the lineup most of the time when Owens started and Larry Steele, too, was out frequently with injuries.

Playing partners can make a difference.

Miscellany . . . Owens scored best last season against Seattle, 17 points a game . . . he averaged 14.8 against his old Houston teammates, 14.5 against Milwaukee and 14.3 against Los Angeles . . . he averaged in double figures against 10 of 21 foes . . . He posted some strong shooting marks against individual opponents . . . he was .654 against the Knicks and .634 against Seattle . . . he shot .591 against New Jersey, .571 against San Antonio, .568 against Los Angeles, .575 against Houston, .565 against Indiana, .556 against Phoenix and .550 against Golden State . . . he led Portland in disqualificataions with seven . . . Owens scored 20 or more points in 14 games and was in double figures in 37 games . . . he had 10 or more rebounds in 20 games . . .

LARRY STEELE

Here we go again . . .

On September 1, veteran Trail Blazer swing man Larry Steele was practicing a little one-on-one with former Blazer Geoff Petrie.

Steele went up to block a shot. He came down with a fracture of the fourth metacarpal (the ring finger) on his right hand.

It is obvious that Steele will not be available for immediate action.

"I've always had to make this club," said the 6-5 Kentucky product philosophically. "You just have to be optimistic."

The past season, Steele's seventh with the Blazers, was a frustrating one.

The 1971 third-round draft choice played in only 65 games—his lowest total as a Blazer—mostly because of foot problems. It is hoped that some special shoes will correct this.

Steele, of course, is the dean of the Trail Blazers. He leads the all-time list in games played (522) and in personal fouls (1571, 307 more than Lloyd Neal.)

He is third in minutes played and third in assists with 1510, just 137 behind Sidney Wicks. And he is fourth in field goals, points, assists and rebounds.

Disqualifications? Larry blushes. He has been disqualified on six personal fouls 41 times. Sidney Wicks ranks a distant second with 16.

Steele, of course, led the NBA in steals with 217 in 1973-74, the first season this statistic was recorded.

In the NBA, .500 shooting, .800 shooting from the foul line and double-figures scoring often are rated as marks of excellence.

Steele, in his career, is so close—with .494 shooting, .791 foul shooting and an 8.3 scoring average.

Miscellany . . . Steele has shot .500 or better from the field in two of his last four seasons, his career best being .548 in 1974-75 . . . He has shot .806 or better from the foul line in three of his last four seasons, with a high of .836 in '74-'75 . . . Steele last season scored best against Los Angeles (12.5 points per game), New Jersey (11.7) and Indiana (11.0) . . . he had some eye-opening shooting marks against individual opponents, including .609 against Indiana . . . he was .588 against both Detroit and New York, .577 against Kansas City, .556 against Los Angeles, .533 against Philadelphia, .542 against Atlanta and .529 against Phoenix . . . incredibly, Steele shot just .182 against New Orleans, hitting on just 4 of 22 from the floor . . .

DAVE TWARDZIK

Same song . . . second verse . . .

Only one player in National Basketball Association history ever officially has shot .600 or better from the field in a single season.

The name is Wilt Chamberlain . . . he did it with .683 in 1966-67 . . . with .649 in 1971-72 . . . and with the NBA record of .727 in 1972-73 . . .

Wilt, of course, towered somewhat above the seven-foot level.

Then there is Dave Twardzik, a 6-1 guard who plays for the Portland Trail Blazers.

In his two seasons with the Blazers, Twardzik has averaged .602 from the floor.

But the record books still don't include his name.

Two years ago, in his first season with Portland, Twardzik shot .612 and easily would have led the NBA in shooting accuracy except that he was a total of 37 field goals short of official qualification.

Last season Twardzik "slumped" to .592 from the field.

Again, Twardzik would have ranked first in shooting accuracy (the leader was Bob Jones of Denver at .578) except this time around he was 58 field goals short of official qualification.

That's fewer than one field goal a game.

Twardzik, a product of Old Dominion, was a 1972 draft choice of the Trail Blazers. But it took him more than four years to join the team.

He elected to sign with Virginia in the American Basketball Association. In four seasons with Virginia, Twardzik averaged nine points a game, shot .501 from the floor and .818 from the foul line.

In two seasons with Portland, in addition to shooting .602 from the floor, Twar-

In two seasons with Portland, in addition to shooting .602 from the floor, Twardzik has shot .815 from the foul line and has averaged 9.6 points a contest.

Miscellany . . . Twardzik's 1977-78 shooting marks against some individual opponents are difficult to believe . . . he was .933 (that's from the floor) on 14 of 15 against Indiana . . . he was .808 on 21 of 26 against Buffalo and an even .800 on 16 of 20 against the Boston Celtics . . . he shot .667 against both Golden State and New Jersey, .632 against San Antonio, .629 against Detroit, .625 against Cleveland, .615 against both Phoenix and Washington, .611 against the New York Knicks and an even .600 against both Los Angeles and Chicago . . . he has not explained his .375 shooting mark against Milwaukee . . . Twardzik scored best against Detroit and Buffalo, averaging 12.3 points a game against both clubs . . . he had two career single-game highs last season, 14 field goals attempted and 8 rebounds . . . he started 47 games . . . he scored in double figures in 33 games and had six or more assists in 15 games . . .

BILL WALTON

Despite missing 24 games, Bill Walton enjoyed his finest professional basketball season in 1977-78 in terms of accolades.

Walton was starting center in the 1978 National Basketball Association All Star game in Atlanta.

At the season's end the 6-11 center from UCLA was named to the NBA's All-Defensive first team.

The four-season professional was selected to the first All Star team at the end of the campaign.

And, finally, by a vote of the players, he was named the Most Valuable Player in the NBA.

Walton last season averaged 18.9 points a game —his highest total as a professional.

He averaged 13.2 rebounds a game and would have tied for fifth in the NBA except that he was 34 rebounds short of official qualification.

Walton shot .720 from the foul line, the best mark of his career and the first time he was over .700.

Walton shot .522 from the field, just outside top 10 ranking in the league and the second-best mark of his four professional seasons.

The three-season All American from UCLA blocked 146 shots and officially ranked fourth in the NBA in this department.

And he was credited with 291 assists, highest total of his professional career.

In the playoffs, Walton saw 49 minutes of action in two games. He responded with 27 points, 22 rebounds and a shooting percentage of .611 from the field.

In his four professional seasons, Walton has averaged 17.1 points and 13.5 rebounds a game and has shot .509 from the floor and .673 from the foul line.

Miscellany . . . Walton averaged 20 or more points a game last season against 11 of Portland's 21 opponents . . . his top averages were 28 points a game against New Jersey and 27.5 points a contest against the Milwaukee Bucks . . . he shot better than .600 from the field against six opponents . . . he was .692 against Atlanta, .686 against Milwaukee, .679 against Houston, .621 against New Jersey, .607 against Detroit and .606 against New Orleans . . . he also was .575 against Philadelphia, .563 against Indiana and .556 against the New York Knicks . . . Walton averaged exactly 16 rebounds a game against Phoenix, Boston, San Antonio and Golden State . . . and posted a 15.5 average against Los Angeles . . .

MYCHAL THOMPSON

First draft selection in the country in 1978 was Mychal Thompson, 6-10 center-forward from Minnesota, who has signed a five-year contract with the Trail Blazers . . . Thompson is Minnesota's all-time scoring leader with 1,992 points, the school's all-time leader in rebounds with 956 and the Golden Gophers' best percentage shooter in history at .561 . . .

In four years at Minnesota, Thompson averaged 20.8 points a game . . . his point averages were 12.5 as a freshman, 25.9 as a sophomore, an even 22 as a junior and 22.1 as a senior . . . his shooting marks were phenomenal . . . .530 as a freshman, .573 as a sophomore, .606 as a junior and .536 as a senior . . .

A native of Nassau in the Bahamas, Thompson, now 23, attended Jackson High School in Miami, Fla. . . . he was selected All American his last three seasons at Minnesota and last year was named by United Press International, Associated Press, the U.S. Basketball Writers Association, the NBA Coaches Basketball Weekly and the Sporting News . . .

Thompson's top point explosion of 1977-78 was 34 against University of Iowa . . . as a junior he scored 30 or more points five times with a high of 35 against Indiana . . . among Minnesota single-season all-time records held by Thompson are the following . . . most points, 647 . . . best scoring average, 25.9 . . . most field goals, 264 . . . best field goal percentage, .606 . . . and most personal fouls, 95 . . .

RON BREWER

Ron Brewer, a 6-4, 180-pound guard from Arkansas, was selected by the Blazers seventh in the first round of the 1978 draft . . . in three seasons with Arkansas, Brewer averaged 16 points a game, increasing each season from 11.9 as a sophomore to 17 as a junior to a team-leading 18 as a senior . . .

Brewer proved a sizzling percentage shooter in college . . . he was .575 from the field as a sophomore, .610 as a junior and .531 as a senior with an overall mark of .565 . . .

Brewer, who attended Northside High in Fort Smith, Ark., played one season at Westark, Ark., junior college before moving to the state university . . . he led Arkansas in steals as a senior with 77 . . . his senior high point game was 29 against Texas A&M . . .

Blazer Assistant Coach Jack McKinney, after watching Brewer in rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League, said of the first-round selection, "A very talented offensive player who had trouble adjusting to our game because his style of running and directing was at more of a controlled pace. We had to push him to get him into the pace we like to play. Defensively he was not aggressive enough, wasn't used to putting pressure on the ball."

"But all the things he didn't do well are coachable," McKinney said, then added, "He has very good natural ability, good skills and works hard . . . he wants to be a good player and has an exceptional attitude . . . whatever we wanted him to do he tried very hard to do" . . .

KEITH HERRON

Keith Herron, 6-6, 195-pound guard from Villanova, was drafted second in the second round by the Blazers in 1978 . . . he was the 24th player taken overall in the draft . . . Herron played mostly forward at Villanova but is expected to be used mostly at guard by the Trail Blazers.

Herron led Villanova in scoring last season with 19.9 points a game and averaged 18.5 points a contest over four years at the school . . . he was remarkably consistent with point averages of 17.9 as a freshman, 16.1 as a sophomore, 19.8 as a junior and the 19.9 last season . . . in four seasons with Villanova, Herron shot a solid .480 from the floor . . .

Herron, who played high school basketball at Mackin in Washington, D.C., is one of three brothers to play for Villanova . . . Larry and Reggie are the others . . . all three started against Colgate in 1976-77, perhaps a collegiate first . . .

Herron scored his career high of 35 points against Alabama in 1976-77 . . . his top effort last season was a 33-point explosion against Boston College . . .

After watching him in rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League, Assistant Coach Jack McKinney of the Blazers said, "Keith is an exceptionally good offensive scorer . . . he takes the ball to the basket extremely well and is an outstanding outside shooter . . . he is a guy who shoots so well that every time he takes a shot I expect it to go in. He needs work on ball handling because he was a forward in college and would play mostly guard for us. And he needs work on defense for the same reason. It's a bit of an adjustment from playing forward to playing guard" . . .

KIM ANDERSON

Kim Anderson, a 6-7, 200-pound forward from Missouri, was Portland's second-round draft choice in 1977, the 27th player taken overall . . . but he elected to play last season in Europe . . .

Anderson averaged 14 points a game in four seasons at Missouri and boosted this average to 18.3 points a contest as a senior . . . his shooting at Missouri improved each season, from .407 as a freshman to .468 as a sophomore to .528 as a junior to .548 as a senior . . .

Anderson is a native of Sedalia, Missouri, where he earned all-state honors in basketball . . .

After watching Anderson in rookie camp and the Los Angeles Summer League, Assistant Coach Jack McKinney of the Blazers said, "Kim is one of the two most improved players this summer from the start of rookie camp to the end of the Los Angeles league.

"It took him a little while to shake out some of the wrinkles from playing in Europe . . . he is strong and plays aggressively . . . a very good shooter . . . he can play either side for us . . . he'll run well on the weak side and still get in there and bang" . . .

CLEMON JOHNSON

Clemon Johnson, a 6-10, 240-pound center from Florida A&M, was drafted by the Blazers 22nd in the second round in 1978 . . . he led Florida A&M in rebounding his last three seasons and over four years posted a 14.5 average . . . Johnson averaged 17.2 points a game his senior season, best record of his four years . . . he shot .570 from the field as a senior and hit on 53 per cent of his shots in four seasons . . . his college coach, Ajac Triplett says, "Clemon has improved 200 per cent since his first game . . . I believe his best basketball is still ahead of him . . . his greatest attributes are his shot blocking and rebounding" . . . Blazer Assistant Jack McKinney, after watching Johnson in the Los Angeles Summer League, said, "He is a strong, hard-working big man who has great timing and shot blocking ability . . . he can rebound strongly at times . . . he improved a great deal during the time he worked with us . . . his defense is adequate but could be much better if he became more aggressive and used his size and strength to the fullest."

CLAY JOHNSON

Clay Johnson, 6-4, 190-pound guard from Missouri, was drafted by the Blazers in the fourth round in 1978 . . . he led Missouri in scoring last season with 17.2 points a game and also led the team in rebounding with 7.7 a contest . . . he averaged 15.2 points a game in two seasons and shot a solid .499 from the floor . . . he had Missouri's top individual game last season with 30 points against Utah . . . says Assistant Coach Jack McKinney, "Clay is an exciting offensive aerial artist . . . By that I mean he spends most of the time up in the air during a game. Tremendous leaping ability. He got more dunks than anyone on the team in Los Angeles. A very good shooter, has great speed, is a runner. He must work harder and become more proficient defensively to be a definite asset to the team." . . .

WILLIE SMITH

Willie Smith, a 6-1, 170-pound guard from Missouri, came to Portland's rookie camp as a free agent, impressed coaches enough to play in the Los Angeles Summer League and impressed them in LA enough to return to fall camp . . . he was the first player drafted in the second round (by the Chicago Bulls) in 1976 . . . Smith was a consensus All American who led Missouri to the school's first Big Eight title in history with a 25.3 scoring average . . . he exploded for 43 points against NCAA finalist Michigan in his senior season and was Most Valuable Player in the Midwest regionals . . . says Assistant Coach Jack McKinney, "Willie, along with Kim Anderson, improved the most from the start of rookie camp until the end of the Los Angeles league . . . he was a reknowned shooter and scorer from college and came to camp with that tag . . . he worked extremely hard to get into our game as a ball handler and playing tough, aggressive defense . . . and he played so well on defense in our games that before T. R. Dunn arrived he was the best defensive guard we had" . . .

What you do with your free time is our business.

We're G.I. Joe's, outfitters for the Northwest's Leisure Life.

Sure, other stores sell automotive supplies, sporting goods, hunting and fishing gear, outdoor and ski clothing and equipment, stereos, hobby, garden supplies and more.

But few stores offer G.I. Joe's selection and values in every department.

One way to get to know us is to shop around—compare selection and prices before you come in. But the best way to know G.I. Joe's is simply to drop in and browse any of our stores in Portland and Salem.

Nobody enjoys free time like Northwesterners. And at G.I. Joe's, we're dedicated to helping you have fun.

G.I. Joe's—Five locations. North Portland, Rockwood, Oak Grove, Beaverton Mall, and Salem. Your official NBA Team store.
